Antichrist 2012: Footsteps

"But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." - 2 Timothy 3:13, KJV

Jacob, left the work on his list of potential agenda items to formulate a plan to deal with his chief assistant, David Kovacs.

David seemed troubled and had lost focus on his responsibilities and, even worse, his undying dedication to Jacob and the Intermediary had been replaced by his devotion to his research on his birth parents and their Jewish/Christian beliefs.

David had been an assistant to the Secretary far longer than Jacob had been Secretary, and even longer than the current Intermediary had been selected. David was now 68 years old and has been working in the Office for 39 years. In fact, if it had not been for the blemish on his record - the early Christian conversion he may have been named Secretary.

As Jacob thought about that, he realized the wisdom of the Archons, who had demanded that nobody who had ever had a "Christian Experience", no matter how much they denied it now, could ever assume the highest positions. The power of the "New Birth" had such a hold on people that, even if they denied the existence of God, they could not be trusted to be resistant to the power of the Ruach to draw them back. David had been just a small child; the Watchers had verified that, but even the Watchers, as insightful as they were from observing thousands of years of human history, were still unable to discern what had gone on in the Soul of David, or any other human when it came to the New Birth.

Here and now, David might be one of those examples - a loyal servant for decades, and yet, if he had been "Born Again", he was family to the Jehovah Trinity, and the Archons would have no power over him to block Jehovah's entreaties. Distract him, of course, but there was a power that the Born Agains had that even the Archons did not; and while many of the Born Agains had faithfully served the cause of the Archons, there were far too many defectors who had returned to the Jehovah side at some point.

This could not happen with David, he knew too much, he had been present at every 300 meeting, every Archon and 300 meeting, and even some of the private Archon meetings with only the Intermediary, the Secretary and David present.

David had been the most loyal of all the assistants, which was why he was so trusted - not even the Watchers ever had a doubt about his commitment - and he was still trusted by everyone in the Office, with the growing concerns of Jacob and the Intermediary the only blemish on that trust. Ever since he was told by his dying adoptive father that his real surname was Cohn, and that his parents were named Avraham and Sarai, and had come to Hungary in their youth and had met and married there, David was obsessed with finding the history of his parents. Even the Watchers were surprised to find out that he was not the natural child of the Kovacs' family. The Watchers had been far too pre-occupied with enjoying the activities of the Nazis to watch everyone in Europe during the war, but to overlook a Passover celebration by a Christian family and Jews was the height of incompetence.

Passover was too effective as a tool in the hands of Jehovah's people, and always was to be observed. The Watchers of Hungary had paid dearly for their oversights. Now, David, a son of Holocaust victim Jews, who was given to a Christian family to be cared for on Passover Night, who had made a christian "profession of faith" as a child, who had risen through the ranks of the 300 Office to be 3rd in rank, was now researching his roots, researching Passover, researching the bible, and researching end time prophecies about everything they had planned for thousands of years. This could be a serious blow to their plans, and he could waste no more time in contemplation, he had to know where David stood, and soon.

The Archons had long ago decided that defection must be prevented; the potential defector must be eliminated - before defecting.

He was charged with resolving the problem and was trying to determine if David was approaching the point of defecting. The human spies and the Watchers, still had nothing negative to report about David's actions and conversations - he seemed to be approaching it all as if trying to exorcise the Jewish and Christian "demons" from his past, Jacob thought. But, still, we can never know the "heart" of a man, and that was worrying him, despite all of the external reassurances.

Jacob knew he must speak to him and bring him to his senses about this and demand from him his former dedication... or else.

David was back from his latest vacation to Israel to track his "roots." He was still as "anti-christian/anti-God as he ever was, and had one more venue to explore - the end-times prophecies.

He knew there was much written about it, because of 300 meetings he had attended when it was the topic of the Spirituality Domain discussions. The 300 felt things were going well, because they were now able to sow such great discord with the revival of many false concepts about the end times - both among secular news and entertainment programming, and even among the christians themselves, with new books with new theories coming out all the time to keep most christians confused. The key, he had learned from the 300 meetings was to remove the end-time focus from Israel and place it on the church.

He didn't really get to hear the "why" of the strategy, and maybe that was why he was so drawn to the emergence of "Replacement Theology - the Church replaced Israel in the eyes and plans of God, and the newer, "Grafted Theology", wherein the Christians became Jews. In studying this online he became aware of the Psalm 119 website that had, in one place, several interesting ideas he was anxious to explore - "Grafted" and their take on the Prophecies of the end-times, which he was watching with rapt attention in his current studies. He had studied their lessons on the Feasts and the Calendar, and had watched an older video on "Eclipses", and was now getting ready to watch their latest entries on Daniel's prophecies:
